DETAILED ACTION

1. Claim 1 is pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts.

In the present case, claim 1 only recites an abstract idea. The recited steps of identifying, defining, assuming, estimating and computing does not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts since all of the recited steps can be performed in the mind of the user or by use of a pencil and paper (communication system). These steps only constitute an idea of how to estimate component surplus.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1, line 1, "the estimation" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 1, lines 4, 5, "the quantity" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 1, line 5, "the component" lacks antecedent basis and is not clear what is being referenced in relationship to "each component" from lines 4, 7.

Claim 1, line 6, "the components" lacks antecedent basis and is not clear what is being referenced in relationship to "the component" from line 5 and "each component" from lines 4, 7.

Claim 1, line 8, "the quantity" lacks antecedent basis and is not clear what is being referenced in relationship to "the quantity" from lines 4, 5.

Claim 1, line 10, "at their respective" is not clear what is being referenced.

Claim 1, line 12, "the mean production" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 1, line 13, "the expected surplus" lacks antecedent basis.

Claim 1, line 14, "the uncancelable level the selected component" is not clear.

Applicant is requested to clarify these claim limitations in relationship to the descriptive portion of the specification and the drawing figures presented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 1, as understood, is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Huang et al, US 5,953,707.

Huang discloses a system for providing in assemble-to-order manufacture estimation of components. Huang does not specifically disclose defining a vector of connect rates for each component.

To have provided vector of connect rates for each component for Huang would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. The motivation for having done such would have been to incorporate common knowledge and extremely well known connect rates for clients desiring such services in assemble-to-order manufacture.

7. A further pertinent reference of interest is noted on the attached PTO-892.
